About the Day

All life's experiences, however big or small, have the potential to be life-giving and perhaps especially those which hurt or challenge us.

We need to learn to hold on to these moments of truth, chew them over and be taught by them. As we give life's experiences the chance to speak to us we can also begin to see the flimsiness of the way the world lives its life compared to the reality of what God's way of life has to offer.

We need to begin to listen to God in the everyday things of life, to let them share their mysteries. We need to learn together to pay proper attention to the daily, ordinary events of life so that we can find what is hidden.

The spiritual journey starts with our being present to our own lives and attending to God who is always present in them. We do not normally need to look far from our ordinary everyday lives to find what we are seeking.
